

Community Service 2011 Company of the Week: Fulton Financial Corporation
Week of April 17, 2011

Fulton Bank Partners with the Salvation Army to Raise Funds for Scholarships
Two scholarships for students of Hispanic heritage given

Pictured from left: Leticia Perez, Hispanic Outreach Specialist, Lieutenant Esau Morales, Assistant Corps Officer, both of the Salvation Army, and Liz Montijo, Fulton Bank teller.

Fulton Bank's Lebanon Division, joined forces with the Salvation Army to raise funds for a local scholarship program.

Fulton Bank raised a total of $625 through the sale of baked goods at the branch in Lebanon. The funds that were raised from the sale of the delicious treats will go directly to support the scholarships offered by the Salvation Army, which are offered for students of Hispanic descent.

At least two scholarships will be given with the funds raised, and both traditional and non-traditional students are eligible to apply for the scholarship. This year two scholarships will be given, one in the amount of $1,000 and another for $500.

Fulton Bank, the largest bank under Fulton Financial Corporation, is a community bank headquartered in Lancaster, Pennsylvania with 121 branches throughout Berks, Bucks, Centre, Chester, Cumberland, Dauphin, Delaware, Lancaster, Lebanon, Montgomery, Schuylkill and York Counties in Pennsylvania as well as the cities of Charlottesville, Chesapeake, Herndon, Manassas, Newport News, Richmond and Virginia Beach in Virginia and the counties of New Castle and Sussex in Delaware.

Congratulations Fulton Financial Corporation!