

Community Service 2011 Company of the Week: Unum
Week of August 7, 2011

Unum Employees Ban Together to Make Food Drive a Success

Tom Watjen (fifth from left), President and CEO, Unum presents a check to the Community Kitchen for $10,000.

This year, Unum's main campuses and field offices in the U.S., U.K. and Ireland joined forces and donated more than 40,000 pounds of food to multiple food banks in those areas during its annual, week-long food drive. The food donations served more than 310,000 hungry and homeless people in those communities.

Unum also gave $57,000 in monetary donations to help support youth and adult programs, help the homeless find jobs and purchase more food.

Employees from the Global Services area deliver food for the Chattanooga food drive.

“We’ve been doing this for several years now and it gets more impressive every year,” said Tom Watjen, president and CEO. “It’s amazing to see the generosity of our employees and how it helps our communities.”

Last year, Unum donated 36,000 pounds of food for area food banks.

Community kitchens around the area are always in need of donations and thanks to Unum many of them get the extra donations they lack during the summer time through Unum’s various other food drives.

Unum is a Fortune 500 company that specializes in disability, group life, long term care and voluntary benefits.

Congratulations Unum!