

TD Bank Serves the Unbanked

TD Bank:

TD Bank provides services and programs specifically for low-to-moderate income households and for un-banked consumers. One of the ways we meet the needs of the community is by partnering with Community Development Organizations and offering a savings program that helps low-to-moderate income individuals and families save for a specific purpose. Our Individual Development Accounts and Family Development Accounts were designed to help the unbanked and under-banked meet their financial goals.

TD Bank also offers financial education for both adults and students grades K-12. Our Adult Financial Education Seminars help our communities make smart decisions with their finances. Topics include Banking for Your Lifestyle, Build & Maintain Great Credit, Breaking the Paycheck to Paycheck Cycle, Home Buying Made Simple and Protecting your Identity.

Our WOW! Zone financial education program was designed to help students in grades K-12 develop strong financial skills, in school and online, www.tdbank.com/wowzone. TD Bank also offers our Summer Reading Program, which promotes reading and financial literacy as the selected books provide financial education to school-aged children.
